

Ontario Ecology & Ethology Colloquium

At Laurentian University, Sudbury

Conference Dates - 14-16 July 2010

OEEC is a conference organized and run by graduate students. Our goal is to present the best science in ecology and ethology in a venue that is accommodating of student needs for friendly and supportive feedback, and low conference cost. This forum is for all researchers including undergraduate students looking for graduate positions, postdocs, and senior researchers. Over the three decades of this conference the range of research areas has expanded to include environmental science, evolution, genetics, conservation and restoration ecology, and psychology. Participants typically come from Ontario, the surrounding provinces, and the northeastern US.

This year, we're strongly pursuing the goal of running as environmentally friendly a conference as we can. The Biology Department graduate students at Laurentian University look forward to welcoming our guests from all over Ontario and the surrounding area.
